Recently I was reading an article where the writer posited these questions: "Why is that when you walk through a mall you may laugh and talk out loud but when you walk in a museum you whisper and are more serious? Why is it that the latest piece of technology may inspire oohs and aahs and a chatter of excited conversation but a well-cared for antique instills silent admiration?" Perhaps it is because we have an innate respect for that which has withstood the test of time. We value that which seems to last. Why? Because we live as temporal beings in a temporal world. We see everything around us as fragile, fading, and finite. Everything ends. The oldest living person in the world currently is 118 years old. Quite amazing. However, even more amazing is how long people in the Old Testament times lived. Seven and eight hundred years old was not uncommon. Methuselah lived to be 969 years old. But you know what happened? Even Methuselah's life came to an end, and today you won't even find a remnant of his body. Looking at Jesus, however, we see something different. He is not temporal. Even though He died, He was raised from the dead and lives FOREVER. The angel proclaims that "His kingdom will have no end." It's so easy to look at Jesus like everything else in this world. We may be tempted to mark His life with its beginning at conception and its end at death, or possibly resurrection, or maybe even His ascension. But Jesus ascended into heaven, where He rules today. His kingdom NEVER ENDS. Today we continue the struggle to prolong life and to make us look good while we get older. In the end, however, we know we will fail. Our life on this earth will end. But the Child born in Bethlehem and laid in a manger has changed that end to our lives. He was not a normal child. He has the name, "Son of the Most High." As such He not only amazed those who wanted to see miracles and confounded those who wanted to hear wisdom; He turned time inside out. For God's children, Jesus made the end of life on earth the beginning of eternal life in heaven. He made the consequences of sin, our death, the doorway to eternal life. Who else but the Son of the Most High could do all this? No one! This is Jesus, our Savior, He is the Christ our Lord and King, Emmanuel – God with us FOREVER! "He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and His kingdom will have no end" (Luke 1:32,33). A blessed Advent, Christmas, and New Year to you!
